

Why should I answer?
Who could it be?
It must be someone, some person
Because animals cannot, will not, should not.
They have nothing to say,
Or... we cannot understand them.

I do not answer
Because I live in fear.
Ready to lock me up
Have I done something stupid?
In a drunken' blackout rage?

Now, I kind of remember
No love for thy neighbor.
I stole her for one night
Maybe she just needed some time apart?
Two or three sins with one bone.

Is it the mother of the child I have never seen?
Or the man with a suit and tie?
Ready to trade papers for money and time.
Physical and biodegradable
Yet more powerful than swords or fire combined.

Time is infinitely more valuable
Only to me.
Why should it matter in the long run?
Doesn't seem so long when it's done.

Only a few seconds burn away
My heart rate increases.
Sweat down my neck,
I hold my breath.

Fear without worry
Will definitely welcome the company.
They take no chance,
Never roll the dice on life.
Smart is the action,
While the intelligent walk
Blindly among them.

I risk it all
For nothing but the rush.
I intrude in the world's timeline
And the humans who she travels with.

Forever written inside
The book of your life
I sincerely apologize
A permanent stain on your lives

All of this in my head
Only nano-seconds until I'm dead.
Peace is active knowledge
Knowing there will be tomorrow.
Live in fear and paranoia
Or embrace the equal and opposite reaction.

The gift of life.
I give to life,
An inevitably disturbing contribution.
And for those who read this
Just a mere nuisance.

All lights turned off
I arise from my fetal pose
Blindly walk my way to the door

Before I could feel the inanimate
Outside light had dissolved all of it.
All that was in my hand
Has turned to water mixed in sand.
